Definitions:

Equality: is about ensuring that every individual in our university community has an equal opportunity to make the most of their lives and talents. Equality is about treating the members of our community fairly so that no one has poorer life chances because of the way they were born, where they come from, what they believe, or whether they have a disability. It also promotes gender equality in all activities, processes and practices in TU Dublin.

Diversity: is about recognising, valuing and taking account of the differences between people in our university community, and placing a positive value on those differences to enable all students and staff realise their full potential.

Inclusion: As an inclusive university, where equality is upheld and diversity respected, TU Dublin promotes and sustains a sense of belonging among all members of its community. It is a culture where people regardless of their gender, age, race, sexual orientation, civil status, family status, disabilities, religion or ethnicity, are respected and appreciated as full and equal members of the University community.
